

AFTER EVERY MEAL

The Need For Security

With the international situation, not only in Europe but also in the Orient becoming daily more fraught with peril, the necessity for a rejuvenated and strengthened League of Nations becomes apparent, if world peace is to be preserved.

First hint of the likelihood of an eventuality, which must have been obvious for some time to student-observers of international trends came in dispatches recently to the daily press of this country when the Italian Mussolini was reported to be paving the way for a rapprochement between Italy, Germany and Austria by attempting to effect a reconciliation of differences between the last two mentioned countries.

When one considers the situation in which these three countries find themselves an alliance in a common cause appears a natural probability. All three sustained serious losses during the Great War and its aftermath. All three are in need of a modicum of territory to provide an outlet for a large number of unemployed or partially unemployed population, or as a source of raw materials or for the promotion of trade or for all three. All three are in the same political as well as the same economic boat for they are faced, and they are facing it, with the same problems. They are intensely ambitious to regain what they have lost and this is probably the principal reason why they are content with the form of government they have.

It is true that the Italian aggression in Ethiopia appears, on the face of it, to have resulted in triumphant achievement for the Italian forces, but it is doubtful whether, in the long run, acquisition of Abyssinia, even if subsequent events do not result in a modification of the fruits of victory at the instance of the League, will prove of great economic benefit to Rome. In any event, it can surely be taken for granted that Mussolini and the Italian people, in their present frame of mind, will not be satisfied to call it a day and sheathe the sword.

With this Italian viewpoint prevailing and Germany and France cycling one another with distrust and apprehension, an alliance between Germany and Italy, fortified by Austria, could not be calculated to render the European situation more secure. Both Italy and Germany are not only well armed and equipped but are perfecting their war machines to the nth degree of perfection, including the training of children of tender years.

The situation is so thoroughly difficult one for Great Britain whose people do not wish to be dragged into another conflagration. On the contrary the inhabitants of the "right little island" are bending their energies towards recovery of economic conditions and statistics prove that they are well on the road towards this objective.

While the British government is keenly alive to the dangers of the international situation, fortunately her statesmen are not disposed to be stampeded into any precipitate measures and quite evidently the people of the country are well satisfied with Anthony Eden's recent assurance that to the council of the League of Nations the country is prepared to "play its part."

Expressing satisfaction with this viewpoint the London Times in a recent editorial said:

"If the League, even the incomplete League, had disposed of the will as it certainly disposed of the means, to bring aggression to a standstill by economic non-cooperation, nothing would now be heard of the contention that the refusal of aid to the aggressor means war; peace would have made successful trials of its resources, and generally we should be looking on a very different scene today."

"Yet, even if the League had succeeded, as it clearly could have succeeded, in the policy of passive resistance, it would still have been necessary to write another chapter in its development and to increase its powers by completing its members with the functions correspond with its capacity. The obstacle to be overcome is the spirit of mutual distrust between France and Germany."

"The outlook would be gloomy indeed if no effort were being, or could be made to attack this situation at its root and the responsibility could be more willingly and gladly borne by British statesmanship than that of seeking the means to end an antagonism which survives to the common danger."

The Times goes on to say that this endeavor was moved into the stage of "serious practical discussions when the questions addressed to the German government on the subject of Herr Hitler's proposals for a lasting European settlement were published in a British White Paper" and suggests that conversations be pursued in a manner that will provide for "fewer opportunities for any possible misunderstanding of tone and intention on either side."

Bears Attack Aeroplane

Ripped Off Door White Machine Was Parked Overnight

Unreported for two months, J. C. F. Dalziel, "mystery" flying tractor of the north, has flown to Fort Simpson, N.W.T., from his remote trapline with his aeroplane parked up where two grizzly bears ripped off the door and damaged fender around it.

Dalziel, who went out to Edmonton last year, learned to fly and came back with an aeroplane, and the bears went after the machine while it was "parked" overnight in the snow. The bears were after a bundle of heavy skins in the craft.

The flyer trapper brought a good catch of fur when he arrived at Fort Simpson, and said his winter trapping operations were successful.

A Grim Story

One Person Killed Every Six Minutes In U.S. Last Year

Coming, appropriately enough, from Chicago, there was a grim tale in last week's papers. It told that in the United States last year they killed one person every six minutes. The National Safety Council figured it out this way:

90,000 killed; 365,000 permanently injured; 9,100,000 temporarily disabled; 271 killed every day, 11 every hour, one every six minutes; 25,000 injured every day, 1,000 every hour, 16 every minute; 1,900 permanently injured every day, 41 every hour. Total financial damage $3,000,000,000 in property loss, wage loss, medical expense.

What puzzles us is how the life and accident insurance companies stand. As for war, well it just doesn't compare with this day-to-day United States slaughter.

Nor should the rest of us feel complacent, nor superior. We too rush about like mad, killing and maiming one another needlessly, making life a sort of shambles.—Ottawa Journal.

Recruiting Officer—So you want to enlist, do you? Are you sure?

Candidate—Yes, sir. I belong to the fighting MacGuire and we never miss a scrimmage. I want to enlist for the duration of the war—or longer if it keeps up that long.

Russian Armaments

Soviet Government Plans To Expend Huge Sum This Year

When the Japanese war office starts to draw attention to the weight of Russian armaments, there is some reason to suggest that the war is calling the kettle black. Japan devoted 47 per cent. of her whole budgetary expenditure last year to defence, and this year proposes to spend 50 per cent. Even so her military budgets, and those of all other countries, pale into insignificance by comparison with Russia's. Russia, Tukhachevski, deputy-commissioner of defence, recently announced that in 1934 the Soviet would expend 14,800,000,000 roubles on her military forces. At the official rate of exchange this sum represents $2,600,000,000 sterling. Britain has for months been debating whether she should spend half the latter sum, spread over a period of years, on modernizing her sea, land and air forces. From all this it is clear enough that, whether the Japanese war office wishes to put the nation on guard or merely to lay a log, it has substantial material to exploit.—Auckland News.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out Of Bed In the Morning Ready To Go

The liver should pump out two pints of bile into the large intestine every day. If this bile is not pumped out, it will build up in the liver and cause liver trouble. This is the cause of indigestion, constipation, and other ailments. The liver is the largest organ in the body and it is the most important. It is the liver that makes the bile flow freely. If the liver is not working properly, the bile will not flow freely and the body will suffer. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name.

A Serious Problem

Restoration Of Confidence In The Country's Wheat Is Needed

Canada's most serious problem in the opinion of Dr. W. W. Swanson, head of the department of economics at the University of Saskatchewan, is a restoration of confidence in the country's wheat.

This is particularly so after the "alarmist" publicity given to the problem because of a temporary crop surplus.

"There has never been any world overproduction of wheat nor any chance of world overproduction," he said in an interview in Montreal. "There was a temporary condition of surplus produced by unusual crop conditions in 1928, which was exaggerated by the crash of speculative markets. It has been impossible for this country to sell its wheat freely at fair prices until this alarm dies down."

Adopt New Method

Nicola Valley Leads The World In Fighting Hoppers

The Nicola Valley in mid-southwestern British Columbia leads the world in fighting grasshoppers—the locust locust menace of ancient days.

According to word received by the provincial department of agriculture, the method used there, of systematically poisoning the egg beds of the grasshoppers, has been approved by a world conference of entomologists at Cairo, Egypt, as being the most effective. Nicola is the only place where this has been done over a period of years.

Women Police Make Good

Number Attached To Scotland Yard Will Be Increased

The few women who have been attached to the criminal investigation department of Scotland Yard have justified their appointment so well that their number is soon to be considerably increased.

At present there are three women detectives in the west end divisions of the Metropolitan police force, and it is suggested there should be at least one woman detective in each division.

Originated With Latin Poet

The expression "Rome was not built in a day" is believed to have originated with the poet Claudius Claudianus, one of the last of the Latin poets (about 400 A.D.). Claudianus wrote: "What Roman power slowly built, an unarméd trader instantly overthrew." The proverb gradually became modified until it survives in its present form.

Peter reports that business there has been improving since early 1933.

Worth Fabulous Sum

Chicago Jeweller Not Disclosing Priced Paid For Gemmed Crown

In a gilded hotel suite in New York, Warren Piper, a Chicago jeweller, displayed a great glittering diadem which he described as the storied and all-but-priceless crown of Our Lady of the Andes.

A group of visitors stood pop-eyed before the magnificence of the crown, which Piper, head of the American syndicate which just has come into possession of the object, had placed in a dull wooden case, flooded by indirect lights.

The gold of the diadem gleamed dully against the green ruddiness abounding from the stones, which Piper said were emeralds, encrusting and hanging pendant from the crown.

Piper declined specifically to estimate its value, saying the emeralds it contained were all but priceless, but he revealed $4,500,000 as an approximate figure.

"White-faced with apparent excitement as yet to just what will be done with the crown. He added, however, it might first be placed on exhibition and later broken up for the private individuals."

Here is substantially the story of the diadem as related by Piper: It was completed in 1569 and came from the Inca by Pizarro's Conquistadores in the conquest of Peru four centuries ago. Negotiations for sale of the diadem, described as the most valuable ever owned by the Catholic Church, were begun in 1914, proceeds to go to charity.

Piper and his associates more than a year ago began active negotiations. Meanwhile, the crown had been under safekeeping in New York.

Piper would not disclose the price paid. He said merely that money went to several South American claimants a part ownership, as well as to the church.

Has Peculiar Style

England's Walking Champion May Be Barred From Olympics

A man with an Olympic worry V. W. G. Stone, England's walking champion—and for good reason.

Stone is a blue streak of the cinders, so much faster than his British rivals that they scarcely can keep him in sight, yet the Olympic officials have notified him he won't be among those present at Berlin this summer unless he alters his walking style!

"And why not?" asks Stone justifiably, having just won the British seven-mile championship. "Because," comes the rejoinder, "we're not so sure that you're really walking. Maybe you're running."

And that's how matters stand. A tentative Olympic champion (they claim his time is well under the Olympic record) might have to stay at home because his country's officials don't wish to take any chances.

Moving pictures, it is pointed out by Stone's supporters, reveal nothing amiss with his walking. He claims, it goes on, unbroken contact with the ground, which is the vital difference between walking and running. Yet he has such a peculiar, unorthodox lope, and is so much speedier than any rival hereabouts, that officials simply won't believe it.

Has Been Twice Around World And Was Sum In Air Liner

Rare letter was found among the letters recovered from the sunken air liner, City of Charleston, crashed into the sea off Alexandria, killing 12 people. The letter, was sent to Mr. R. W. C. Hughes, of Bowaters (Australia), Ltd. It was posted in London to reach Mr. Hughes when he arrived in Montreal. He had already left Montreal when it arrived. The letter was then forwarded to him in New York. It missed him there too. From New York it was sent to a wrong address to Sydney, and redirected to the sender in London. It set out again on its travels in the City of Charleston and went to the bottom of the sea with the rest of the mail. And now at last the letter has reached Mr. Hughes, who says he will treasure it as a memento of a very tragic occurrence. Although it is tattered and stained with salt water, the contents are easily legible.

Only Too Clear

A motorist was giving a woman lessons in driving.

"The hand lever," he said, "brakes the rear wheels only, and the foot pedal brakes all four. Is that clear?"

"Mya," replied the woman, doubtfully, "but I'd rather not have any of them broken."

The bottles were sealed but labels were missing, no doubt due to weather conditions. It is presumed that the liquor is bootleg and probably ten or twelve years old, as that was the time when bootleggers were dying their trade in this vicinity. It was taken to the Pool hall and quickly consumed.

Mrs. Dawson spoke of the splendid reception held in Bayone and of future meetings to be held, and also of the fine work of the two lady members. In her address Mrs. Gustick reviewed the growth of the movement and the conditions which brought the Social Credit Government into office. Reference was made to the Health Act, the Mother's Allowance for deserted mothers and the Rent Bill. The Prospect of Bankruptcy, Mrs. Gustick, was designed to increase the purchasing power and therefore business and it should be supported as an important factor in the Social Credit Plan.
